Ypres Slaughter Pen.

With the British secure in all the positions they won Thursday along more than eight miles of front of the Ypres sector in Flanders, Field Marshal Haig's men were busy Friday consolidating their newly won positions and preparing for another hack into the German lines when the time becomes propitious. Nothing but the dropping of shells from German guns served to interrupt the breathing spell the British were taking, except here and there small counter attacks which lacked the usual strength the Germans employ in endeavoring to regain lost ground. In addition to the enormous casualties inflicted on the Germans, the British captured 4,446 prisoners in Thursday's attacks, among them 114 officers. Not only have the British wrenched away many vital strongholds, but they have inflicted almost unprecedented casualties on the enemy. As the attacking troops went out in quest of great adventure over the mist-shrouded slopes the vast protective artillery barrage caught in its merciless swirl large numbers of the enemy, who, by coincidence also, had been massing for an early morning attack along a wide front extending from the neighborhood of Zonnebeck to the Polygood wood. Some five divisions of German troops were actively involved, three of these having been hurriedly rushed up in reserve in order to support their comrades in the front lines when the German attack should begin. A solid wall of breaking shells plowed through them in a hurricane of death and they lie in countless thousands amid the devastation that the barrage left in its wake. Part of these ill-fated troops were the famous guardsmen in whom the German emperor had taken such pride in the days gone by. But these massed troops were not the only ones to suffer, for reports from prisoners all along the line indicate that the Germans lost heavily throughout the territory involved. At many places Germans ran in terror or were captured in large numbers as the British attack began. All day streams of broken prisoners continued pouring into the British camps in the rear. Perhaps half of them were wounded, some blinded and some with shattered limbs, a pitiful sight even to those hardened to such scenes.

Soldiers Can Keep Cow.

Washington, Oct. 5.—Soldiers in the American army not only may keep a cow, but they can feed it at the government's expense, provided they consume the milk, says a ruling of the Judge Advocate General. The decision was rendered on the question of whether feed for a cow kept by a detachment of soldiers for the production of milk for the detachment mess could legally be purchased from the ration savings in view of the regulation that "such savings shall be used solely for the purchase of articles of food."

Wanted—A Husband.

(In Answer to "Wanted—A Wife.")

Wanted by millions of girls in America, a husband who can live on his income without his wife working outside her home.

Wanted, a husband whose time in life is not spent in saloons, gambling and joy riding; who will not neglect his wife; who loves a home.

Wanted, a husband who loves children enough to help his wife care for them.

Wanted, a husband who does not drink whisky, chew tobacco or smoke cigarettes; who will not be bored when his wife talks about her work.

Wanted, a husband who will not look like an advertisement of a clothing store; who will look neat.

Wanted, a husband who will not quarrel or get mad when he has lost his collar button; who can keep his faith though all women fall to doubting.

Wanted, a husband who will love through sickness or health, poverty or riches.

Wanted, a husband who likes church and Sunday school, music and books.

—Madisonville Hustler.

Compensation Allowed.

The presumption that a wife is dependent wholly on her husband applies only when an accident happens to the husband, the Workmen's Compensation Board decided in the case of Rosa French Dittus against the Andrews Steel Company, of Newport, in which the board allowed Mrs. Dittus compensation for the death of her son by a former husband, Thruston French.

The boy contributed to the support of the family, even after his mother married again, and up to the time of his death, June 14. Mrs. Dittus was allowed $3 weekly for 335 weeks.

Letters From Home.

The Postoffice at Camp Taylor is one of the most important places connected with the big military city. Three truckloads of mail are hauled from the main Postoffice, at Fourth and Chesnut streets, every morning by the motor train. The clerks at the branch office have been worked hard and long distributing the mail. A delivery is made to each regimental headquarters by motors three times each day, besides special delivery service at all times by the usual special delivery route.—Post.

Losses Again Drop.

The record for shipping losses by submarines in any one week since unrestricted warfare was resumed was again lowered last week when only 11 vessels of more than 1,000 tons were destroyed. The previous record was 15 vessels of more than 1,000 tons. It is officially announced that accurate figures compiled show that actual losses are less than two-thirds of the German claim of 900,000 tons a month since resumption of the unrestricted use of the submarine.

"Bugs In His Head."

Tommy had received a scalp wound and was told that he must keep it clean so it wouldn't become infected with bacteria. He asked what bacteria were and was told they were "little bugs." The wound subsequently became infected, and Tommy went round the neighborhood telling his playmates that "he had bugs in his head."—Amie Bloombach, Chicago.

KEPT HER AWAKE

The Terrible Pains in Back and Sides. Cardui Gave Relief.

Marksville, La.—Mrs. Alice Johnson, of this place, writes: "For one year I suffered with an awful misery in my back and sides. My left side was hurting me all the time. The misery was something awful."

I could not do anything, not even sleep at night. It kept me awake most of the night. I took different medicines, but nothing did me any good or relieved me until I took Cardui.

I was not able to do any of my work for one year and I got worse all the time, was confined to my bed off and on. I got so bad with my back that when I stooped down I was not able to straighten up again. I decided I would try Cardui. By time I had taken the entire bottle I was feeling pretty good and could straighten up and my pains were nearly all gone.

I shall always praise Cardui. I continued taking it until I was strong and well. If you suffer from pains due to female complaints, Cardui may be just what you need. Thousands of women who once suffered in this way now praise Cardui for their present good health. Give it a trial. NC-133

Annual Tug of War.

The University of Kentucky announces that the annual tug of war between the freshmen and sophomore classes will take place October 12. It takes the place of the old-time flag-raising in settling the question of supremacy, and is held under the auspices of the faculty. The change was made because of the number formerly injured in the flag-raising enthusiasm. One hundred and seventy-four freshmen will pull against 109 sophomores this year.

ROAD BUILDING HINTS GIVEN

Military Attaches With Former Premier Balfour of England, Impart Information.

Some interesting information regarding military road building was given to the United States when the English mission headed by Former Premier Balfour arrived in New York. Military attaches told how the armies of France and Great Britain rebuilt roads in France and Belgium.

English military engineers recently have made experiments demonstrating that it is possible and desirable to build the highest types of road surfaces for the temporary or emergency movement of artillery and supplies. Roads built with asphalt sent from England have been constructed in the rear of the Franco-Belgian front. Roads so improved gave better service than any type attempted under the swift and heavy movement necessitated by the artillery action which precedes infantry attacks. It was observed that motortrucks and gun carriages suffered no injury in movement over these hastily constructed pavements, while frequent breakdowns were experienced when road building was not attempted.

Following those experiments a mission, including officers of the British and French engineer corps, looked over the pavements in the environs of Paris built in the last three or four years. Among other roads inspected was the asphalt pavement laid on the road to Versailles, which has been carrying heavy military traffic ever since the war started. As a result of these experiments and investigations it has been decided, wherever possible, to construct similar surfaces for the movement of military traffic in regions where roads have been destroyed or where they may be made necessary by battle plans.

PLAN OF MAIN TRUNK LINES

California Is Spending $18,000,000 on
Two Chief Highways From Oregon to Mexico.

John A. Wilson, president of the American Automobile association, says of the federal good roads law recently passed.

"Thirty-four states have now outlined in some form a system of main trunk lines, which is now an augury for the success of the federal-aid plan just inaugurated. In this connection it is worthy to note that California was the first state to apply for its apportionment of the money, and California is expending $18,000,000 on two main highways extending from the Oregon to the Mexican line. It should be kept in mind that an application for federal aid in the improvement of any road must be made by the highway department of the state. Consequently if anybody in the state desires to have a road improved at the aid of federal funds it is necessary that the matter be taken up with the state highway department and not with the federal government."

Good Road in California.

BUILDING GOOD EARTH ROADS

Can Be Constructed at Low Cost, but They Require Constant and Costly Attention.

Good earth roads can be constructed at a very low cost; however, they require constant maintenance, which may be expensive where the travel is heavy. A well-built and properly maintained earth road will serve some sections as well as the most expensive types of hard-surfaced roads will serve other sections. Where this fact is realized more attention will be paid to earth roads, and the money spent on them will not be regarded as lost.

"Sweet Smelling Nails."

According to Sir George Watt, the name "clove" denotes its resemblance to a nail (clavus). There seems no doubt, he says, that the Chinese procured the clove from its island home, the Moluccas, or Spice Islands, for several centuries before it reached Europe; there are records that point to this traffic as early as 200 B. C. The clove was not regarded by the inhabitants of the Spice Islands as of any value until the Chinese desired to be supplied with "little sweet-smelling nails." In that circumstance alone lay the interest taken by the people of the Moluccas in the plant, and "nail" or "clove" became its name in most countries.

MONEY

In every community there is enough money in hiding to start a respectable bank.

This money is not only liable to be lost by theft or fire, but it is placed where it does not bring in any income to the holder--neither is it of any use to the public.

Deposit this "dead" money with us. Then it will get into circulation and be of some benefit to yourself and also to the community.

The more money there is in circulation, the cheaper the rate of interest; the easier it is to borrow, and the more prosperous the general business conditions.
